

Three houses

Private committee
Olgiate Comasco – Como - 2006

In the planned area, the realization of three houses was developed on two floors above ground, and one basement.

The site was designed with strong characteristics due to the accentuated slope of the land.

The houses are built with specific relations to the passage and the configuration of the land, which creates the sensation of being both inside and outside.

The relationship with the natural environment is obtained through the use of natural materials: the stone of the walls, and in the basement of the buildings, wood will pave the terrace.

Overlooking the main slope and with the screened porch, it allows the lighting to create permeability and create a very open feel to the house.
